PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Dear Friends,

Summer usually means a relaxing break and slower pace of life. This is not true for the Booktique, where it's busier than ever! Our used bookstore is always buzzing, but even more so now as the Lake Oswego Public Library is culling their collections in anticipation of tagging every single item in the building with Radio Frequency Identification (RFID). This is a monumental undertaking and has resulted in large numbers of materials coming into the Booktique on a weekly basis. Huge thanks to Jean France and all of our volunteers, who sort, price and then sell these books, cds,, dvds, etc...

We honored the 50 plus Booktique volunteers last month at the Stafford. Our group celebrated the tireless hours of work that go into running our used bookstore. We enjoyed a delicious meal, lovely entertainment by young musicians and heard from our library director, Bill Baars and bookstore manager, Margaret Ogren.

During our luncheon, I had the honor of bestowing the second annual Maxine Collins Award to Terry Huber. Terry has and continues to impact the Friends of Lake Oswego Public Library in so many ways. She follows first-time recipient, Bev Ross, in being honored for her immense contributions to the Lake Oswego Public Library. Terry was quite surprised, as I had tricked her a bit into sending me information she thought was being written into an article about the group. After she forgave me for my treachery, she was very pleased with the honor. The Maxine Collins Award plaque will hang in the library.

Our next General meeting will be held in late September, so I'll look forward to seeing many of you then. Until that time, be on the lookout for a special mailing for all current Friends members. Thanks to a wonderful suggestion by our own Martin Jacobs, you'll all be receiving a coupon card towards your purchases at the Booktique. We are grateful for your continued support; we couldn't do all that we do for the Lake Oswego Public Library without you. Thank you!

All my best,

Nancy

Booktique Volunteers Deserve Praise

Philanthropist Marjorie Moore is credited with saying, "Volunteering is the ultimate exercise in democracy. You vote in elections once a year, but when you volunteer, you vote every day about the kind of community you want to live in."

Five years ago I became the manager of the Booktique, looking for something meaningful to do in my retirement. As a school librarian I had worked with parent volunteers, and I was looking forward to meeting all the people who were volunteering for the Friends at the Booktique. I expected I would find library- and book-lovers, and beyond that I didn't know what to expect.

I had no idea.

I had no idea how many kind, hardworking, intelligent, funny, and generous people were dedicating hours of their time, thought, and energy to the Friends of the Library and the Booktique, and I had no idea how many more would show up to join the endeavor. I had no idea how warmly I would be welcomed and how much I would come to love this wonderful little store and this amazing group of over 50 volunteers.

Helen Keller spoke truth when she said, "Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much." Next time you are in the store, take a moment to thank the volunteers who are sorting your donations, pricing and shelving the "new" books, adding up your purchases, and helping you find just the right book for your reading pleasure. The Booktique could not exist without them.

Margaret Ogren
Booktique Manager

At this year's Booktique volunteer luncheon, we honored former Friends president, Terry Huber, with the Maxine Collins award, for her incredible service to The Friends of Lake Oswego Public Library. She was both delighted and surprised by the honor. Terry has been instrumental in increasing membership, helped to create our website, all while working at the Booktique every Wednesday. Thankfully, after her 'retirement' as president, she remains a Booktique volunteer, serves on the Lake Oswego Reads Steering committee and helps me in my role as president in ways too many to mention. We are so grateful for the many contributions made to our group by Terry. Congratulations! This is a well-deserved honor!
